

About the author of this book:

ANITA DANIEL is an American citizen who was born in Rumania and educated in France. She is a free-lance writer for the New York Times Magazine, the Christian Science Monitor, This Week and many other magazines and newspapers. In her travels she has interviewed kings, statesmen, famous artists and writers. She has also written a series of travel books: I Am Going to Switzerland; I Am Going to Italy; and I Am Going to New York.

Mrs. Daniel has known Albert Schweitzer for many years and has often been a guest in his house.

About the illustrator of this book:

WITOLD T. MARS was born in Poland and graduated from the Fine Art Academy in Warsaw. He served during the Second World War with the Polish forces under British command in France, Belgium, Holland and Germany. After the war he lived in England and Scotland, then came to the United States in 1952.

Mr. Mars, a Fellow of the Central Institute of Art and Design, London, and a member of the Paddington Artists Association, has illustrated many children's books and magazines.

For a complete list of Landmark books,
see inside of this jacket