Curious Historian

Scope & Sequence

With so many subjects to learn, and so little time to study them all, do we really want to spend time mired in the past, traveling along the dusty roads of former mighty empires such as Babylon, Greece, and Rome, when our students' minds could be speeding along the superhighways of modern technology? We think the answer is an emphatic "Yes!" We agree with the words of well-known modern author Michael Crichton, who said, "If you don't know history, then you don't know anything. You are a leaf that doesn't know it is part of a tree."

We believe that history is about more than memorizing dates, reciting lists of kings and emperors, and remembering who won which battle in wars that changed the world forever. History is also the study of the people who lived during those events. From the beginning of recorded time, people have invented new ways to do things, created beauty in dreary places, and erected buildings and monuments that continue to inspire us. Some of these people became well-known figures and others were ordinary men and women like you and me. But all of us are part of the greater tree of humankind, and we each need to know what our part is as a leaf upon that tree. Without an understanding of the past, we will be less equipped to live in the present and plan for the future.

In each book in The Curious Historian series, you will find a rich, engaging presentation of information about important people and civilizations throughout history that still have much to teach us, even in our modern age. Students will learn about the language, religion, arts, architecture, monuments, and writing of each of these civilizations, kingdoms, and empires. The full-color art and artifacts pictured throughout each book will help them understand what these peoples created and will give them an appreciation of the wonder and beauty of history.

The Curious Historian series will be divided into 3 levels, each of which consists of 2 semester-long texts. The series will cover the following eras.*

Do you ever wonder what our world would be like today if events in the past had happened differently? What if Alexander the Great never "conquered the world" or the British won the American War of Independence? How would your life be different if the telephone had never been invented, or if we were still riding around on horses instead of in cars? What would life be like if we didn't know what a computer was or never flew high above the clouds in an airplane? The twists and turns of history affect everyone alive today. The events of history have helped make you who you are! So, it's good to be curious and ask questions about the generations that came before you. And it's good to know as much about the past as possible so that you can understand this wonderful, complicated world we
