[&]quot;The first question which the thoughtful reader of the Bible has to answer is, What importance and value am I to attach to the contents of the Scriptures? Were the writers of the Bible so many fanatics moved by oracular frenzy? Were they merely poetically inspired and intellectually elevated? Or were they, as they claimed to be, and as the Scriptures affirm they were, moved by the Holy Spirit to act as the voice of God to a sinful world? Were the writers of the Bible inspired by God in a manner no other men were in any other age of the world? Were they invested and endowed with the power to disclose mysteries and point men upward and onward to that which otherwise would have been an impenetrable future? One can readily appreciate the fact that the answer to these questions is of supreme importance. If the Bible is not inspired in the strictest sense of the word, then it is worthless, for it claims to be God's Word. And if its claims are spurious, then its statements are unreliable and its contents are untrustworthy. If, on the other hand, it can be shown to the satisfaction of every impartial inquirer that the Bible is the Word of God, inerrant and infallible, then we have a starting point from which we can advance to the conquest of all truth."

"We distinguish the sacred books from the apocryphal; viz: the third and fourth book of Esdras, the books of Tobias, Judith, Wisdom, Jesus Syrach, Baruch, the appendix to the book of Esther, the Song of the three Children in the Furnace, the history of Susannah, of Bell and the Dragon, the prayer of Manasses, and the two books of Maccabees. All which the Church may read and take instruction from, so far as they agree with the canonical books; but they are far from having such power and efficacy, as that we may from their testimony confirm any point of faith, or of the Christian religion; much less to detract from the authority of the other sacred books." —The Belgic Confession of Faith

[&]quot;There are otherwise orthodox believers who are willing to concede that Scripture was not infallibly inspired. They seek to preserve the general historical trustworthiness of the Bible without maintaining its infallibility. Those who make such 'minor concessions' will find, however, that the same objections that are raised against an infallible Bible will hold in large degree against a Bible that is essentially trustworthy in some more or less orthodox sense of the word." -Cornelius Van Til

[&]quot;The name by which Christians are commonly called in the New Testament is disciples, the signification of which word is scholars or learners. All Christians are put into the school of Christ, where their business is to learn, or receive knowledge from Christ, their common master and teacher, and from those inferior teachers appointed by him to instruct in his name." —Jonathan Edwards

[&]quot;Love to the Word appears pre-eminently in our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. He read it publicly. He quoted it continually. He expounded it frequently. He advised the Jews to 'search' it [Jn. 5:39]. He used it as His weapon to resist the devil. He said repeatedly, 'The Scripture must be fulfilled.'—Almost the last thing He did was to 'open the understanding of His disciples, that they might understand the Scriptures.' (Luke 24:45.) I am afraid that man can be no true servant of Christ, who has not something of his Master's mind and feeling towards the Bible." —J. C. Ryle

For what God doth to one at any time, the same appertains to all that depend upon God and His promises. And, therefore, however we are assaulted by Satan, our adversary, within the Word of God is armor and weapons sufficient."

[&]quot;If, however, we cannot discover explanations of all those things in Scripture which are made the subject of investigation, yet let us not on that account seek after any other God besides Him who really exists. For this is the very greatest impiety. We should leave things of that nature to God who created us, being most properly assured that the Scriptures are indeed perfect, since they were spoken by the Word of God and His Spirit; but we, inasmuch as we are inferior to, and later in existence than, the Word of God and His Spirit, are on that very account destitute of the knowledge of His mysteries. And there is no cause for wonder if this is the case with us as respects things spiritual and heavenly, and such as require to be made known to us by revelation, since many even of those things which lie at our very feet (I mean such as belong to this world, which we handle, and see, and are in close contact with) transcend out knowledge, so that even these we must leave to God. For it is fitting that He should excel all [in knowledge]." —St. Irenaeus of Lyon

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

Quoting the following people should in no way be misinterpreted as an entire or even partial endorsement of their beliefs or their lives. Although most of the figures below were admirable Christians, others were unworthy of emulation. The vices and failings of their lives were usually omitted from the biographical sketches as is the style of 1 Chronicles and 2 Chronicles. These brief reviews of commonly known facts are intended to explain the amazing popularity of these individuals. The diversity of people listed proves the overwhelming support the Holy Bible has received throughout the ages. These men and women all recognized that the Bible was a precious book worthy of our best time and energy. May their words echo through the ages as applause for your effort to learn the Sacred Text. Be strong and of good courage!

President John Adams lived from 1735 to 1826. Adams was a Harvard-educated lawyer who became the first vice president and second president of the United States of America (1797–1801). Adams was a leader in the Revolutionary War and a broker for peace with Great Britian.

President John Quincy Adams lived from 1767 to 1848. John Quincy Adams was a Harvard-educated lawyer like his father. He became a U. S. senator. Following in his father's footsteps, he became the sixth president of the United States of America (1825–1829). In 1830, Adams was elected to the House of Representatives, and served there until his death. Adams was nicknamed, "Old Man Eloquent."

Fisher Ames lived from 1758 to 1808. Ames's admittance into Harvard at age twelve was the start of an extraordinary life. Ames became an American congressman, orator, and political essayist. Ames is best known for his support of a constitutional republic (based on Scriptural convictions) in opposition to Jeffersonian democracy. The First Amendment of the Bill of Rights is based on his words.

St. Thomas Aquinas lived from 1225 to 1274 (ca.). Aquinas was related to several royal families. He was a philosopher, Dominican friar, and theologian. Aquinas taught that the existence of God could be proven through reason. One of his greatest writings was Summa Theologica. Aquinas's ideology helped shape much of Christianity and the Western world.

The Articles of Religion of the Methodist Church, 1784, was distilled by John Wesley. Wesley was an Anglican priest; therefore, he used the Thirty-Nine Articles held by the Church of England as his foundation when establishing articles of faith for the Methodist of America. Unlike the Thirty-Nine Articles; however, Wesley prescribed that the Methodist churches not look to England for the ordination of their clergymen. Methodists still uphold these articles.

St. Athanasius lived from 297 (ca.) to 373 in the Roman empire's metroplex of influence: Alexandria, Egypt. Athanasius wrote Against the Gentiles and On the Incarnation. His powerful advocacy of Jesus' deity in the face of the Arian heresy at the landmark Council of Nicaea in 325 strongly influenced the language of the Nicaean Creed. He became archbishop of Alexandria and was known as the "Father of Orthodoxy." Religious and governmental oppression forced Athanasius into exile several times. The Athanasian Creed is named in honor of his defence of the Trinity. One of Athanasius's Paschal letters is often used when studying canonicity.

Athenagoras lived during the reign of Emperors Aurelius and Commodus which places him in the latter part of the second century. He was an Athenian philosopher who, after his conversion, appealed to the aforementioned emperors around A. D. 177 for justice in Apology. Athenagoras is also remembered for his treatise On the Resurrection of the Dead.

St. Augustine of Hippo lived from 354 to 430. Augustine's full name was Aurelius Augustine. Augustine was a philosopher who later became a powerful theologian, priest, and bishop. Augustine's writings *City of God*land Confessions were pillar achievements. Augustine's teachings were of great influence on Thomas Aquinas, John Calvin, and the entire Western world.

Sir Francis Bacon lived from 1561 to 1626. Bacon was honored as a member of the House of Commons, as Attorney General, and as Lord Chancellor. Bacon's most lasting influences in the world were his theories and methods in philosophy. The inductive method of modern science originated thanks to this man. Bacon wrote The Advancement of Learning and Essays and popularized the expresson, "Knowledge is power."

Roger Bacon lived from 1214 to 1294 (ca.). Bacon was an English philosopher, scientist, linguist, and mathematician. Much of Bacon's efforts were focused on optics. Three of his more appreciated writings were Opus Majus, Opus Minus, and the Tertium. A substantial percent of Bacon's life was spent studying in Oxford and Paris friaries and teaching in Oxford and Paris universities.

Albert Barnes lived from 1798 to 1870 (ca.). Barnes was born in New York and became an ordained Presbyterian minister. Barnes's commentaries have been studied by millions. Barnes's teachings on original sin, among other things, deepened the denominational division which led to the split of 1837.

St. Basil the Great lived from 329 (ca.) to 379 in Cæsarea. Basil was born to St. Basil, Sr.; his brother was St. Gregory of Nyssa; and, his dear friend was St. Gregory of Nazianzus. In addition to founding several monasteries and becoming Archbishop of Cæsarea, Basil opposed Arianism in the
